Learners link interests and abilities with subjects.

			Learners study a table of careers. They identify which careers they are interested in; what subjects are related to the career and whether their choice of career would suit their ability.
5-10	External examination	External moderation of school based assessment over terms 1, 2 and 3 = 100% of qualification

SECTION 4:

ASSESSMENT IN LIFE SKILLS

4.1 Introduction

Assessment is a continuous planned process of identifying, gathering and interpreting information about the performance of learners, using various forms of assessment. It involves four steps: generating and collecting evidence of achievement; evaluating this evidence; recording the findings and using this information to understand and thereby assist the learner's development in order to improve the process of learning and teaching.

Each of the Life Skills topics requires that a certain body of skills, knowledge and values be addressed and assessed. Skills such as decision-making, communication, assertiveness, negotiation, goal-setting, ability to access information, problem-solving and creative thinking are addressed across all four study areas and assessed through formal or informal assessment for Life Skills. In the same way attitudes such as respect for the self and others, respect for and acceptance of differences, taking responsibility, perseverance, persistence, anti-discrimination and equality are also addressed and assessed across all four study areas.

Learner progress in Life Skills is monitored throughout the school year and involves the following two different but related activities:

- a) Informal or daily assessment tasks
- b) Formal assessment tasks

4.2 Informal or daily assessment (assessment for learning)

Assessment for learning has the purpose of continuously collecting information on a learner's achievement that can be used to improve their learning. Informal assessment is a daily monitoring of learners' progress. This is done through observations, discussions, practical demonstrations, learner-teacher conferences, informal classroom interactions, etc. Informal assessment may be as simple as stopping during the lesson to observe learners or to discuss with learners how learning is progressing. Informal assessment should be used to provide feedback to the learners and to inform planning for teaching, but need not be recorded. It should not be seen as separate from learning activities taking place in the classroom. Learners or teachers can mark these assessment tasks. Self-assessment and peer assessment actively involves learners in assessment. This is important as it allows learners to learn from and reflect on their own performance. The results of the informal daily assessment tasks are not formally recorded unless the teacher wishes to do so. The results of daily, informal assessment tasks are not taken into account for progression, promotion and certification purposes. Informal, on-going assessments should be used to scaffold the acquisition of knowledge and skills and should be the stepping stones leading up to the formal tasks in the Programmes of Assessment.

4.3 Formal assessment (assessment of learning)

All assessment tasks that make up a formal programme of assessment for the year are regarded as Formal Assessment. Formal Assessment tasks are marked and formally recorded by the teacher for progression and certification purposes. All Formal Assessment tasks are subject to moderation for the purpose of quality assurance and to ensure that appropriate standards are maintained. Formal assessment tasks form part of a year-long formal Programme of Assessment.

a. Why use a Formal Assessment task?

“Formal Assessment Task (assessment of learning)” – is a systematic way of assessment used by teachers to determine how well learners are progressing in a level and in a particular subject.

b. What is a Formal Assessment Task?

It is a set of questions and or instruction that learners need to respond to. A task may consist of a range of activities. A formal task must be valid, fair and reliable and must cover sufficient knowledge and or skills to report on the learners' progress. Teachers must ensure that assessment criteria are very clear to the learners before the assessment process. This involves explaining to the learners which knowledge and skills are being assessed and the required length of responses. Feedback should be provided to the learners after assessment and could take the form of whole-class discussion or teacher-learner interaction. Examples of formal assessments include projects, oral presentations, demonstrations, performances, tests, examinations, practical demonstrations, etc. The forms of assessment used should be appropriate to the age and the developmental level of the learners. The assessment tasks should be carefully designed to cover the content and or skills of the subject. The design of these tasks should therefore ensure that a variety of skills are assessed. Practical Assessment Tasks allow for learners to be assessed on a regular basis during the school year and also allow for the assessment of skills that cannot be assessed in a written format, e.g. test or examination.

4.3.1 Formal Assessment requirements

In the Formal Programme of Assessment for Life Skills learners are expected to complete four tasks per year. The forms of assessment used should be age and developmental level appropriate. Formal assessment in Life Skills catering for a range of cognitive levels and abilities of learners is as follows:

Weighting	Cognitive level	Bloom's taxonomy	Examples
40%	Lower order	Levels 1 & 2	What? Why? Who? When? Where? List
40%	Middle order	Levels 3 & 4	Discuss, explain, describe
20%	Higher order	Levels 5 & 6	Evaluate, synthesize, critically evaluate, examine

The formal assessment requirements for Personal and Social Well-being are as follows:

Year	Term	Forms of Assessment	Content	Marks
1	1	Design and make	Poster on: Who am I?	30
	2	Class Test	Cover Term 1 and 2 work	30
	3	Project	Explore different careers	30
	4	End-of-year examination	Cover Term 3 and 4 work	50
2	1	Written Task	Case Study and questions related to work on Term 1	30
	2	Class Test	Cover Term 1 and 2 work	30
	3	Design and make	Poster that describes your own personal diet	30
	4	End-of-year examination	Cover Term 3 and 4 work	50
3	1	Project	Design and make a collage on environmental health problems	30
	2	Class Test	Cover Term 1 and 2 work	30
	3	Written Task	Case Study and questions related to work on Term 1, 2 and 3	30
	4	End-of-year examination	Cover Term 3 and 4 work	50
4	1	Design and make	Design a poster which reflects your goals in relation to your personal lifestyle and future career.	30
	2	Class Test	Cover Term 1 and 2 work	30
	3	Written Task	Design a poster and write paragraphs on 2 different careers	30
	4	School Based Assessment for the qualification covers work from Term 1-3		100%

4.4 Projects

4.4.1 Project

The project will be any piece of work in which knowledge, skills and values which lead towards competence in the specific or integrated content, are demonstrated. The task will involve collecting, analysing and/or evaluating data and information that will result in the synthesizing of the findings into a written product that may be reported, modeled or performed by the learners. Learners will collect data/ resources/information outside of contact time to perform the task. The completion of the project will be facilitated by the teacher in class time to ensure the authenticity of the product. The topic and nature of the project will be determined by the content covered according to the annual teaching plan. Learners should be given enough time to complete the project. They need adequate guidance at the outset of the project and progress should be monitored throughout. All assessment criteria applicable to the project must be discussed with the learners prior to the commencement of the project. Learners should be given a project before the end of the second term for submission during the third term.

4.4.2 Written tasks: design and making, case study, assignment and test

The list provides forms of assessment that will serve as written task in Year 1, 2, 3 and 4. Teachers must ensure that learners are exposed to do a variety of these forms of assessment across the four years so that learners do not repeat the same form of assessment across the years.

1) Design and making

Design and making involves the production of the actual product using creative processes to achieve a certain competency. Making is the end product of a design. Learners will be required to design, make and write a descriptive paragraph(s) on the task. Learners are required to show an understanding of knowledge gained and application of knowledge and skills. The focus will be determined by the content covered according to the annual teaching plan. The teacher will provide learners with resources and information required to deliver the task. All assessment criteria applicable to the task must be discussed with the learners prior to the commencement of the task.

Examples:

- Make a collage or poster that describes your own personal diet with reference to your dietary habits and nutritional value. Write one to two paragraphs describing and reflecting your dietary habits and how to improve bad habits or sustain good habits.
- Design a poster using pictures, photos and drawings which reflects your goals in relation to your personal lifestyle and future career. Write brief notes and provide a plan on how to achieve your goals.

2) Assignment

The assignment will allow for a more holistic assessment of knowledge, skills and values and their application in different contexts. The assignment is less open-ended than the project in that it does not require of learners to collect, analyse and/or evaluate data and information that will result in the synthesizing of the findings. It however, will be a problem-solving and/or decision-making and application of knowledge exercise with clear guidelines regarding a specified length. The focus will be determined by the content covered according to the annual teaching plan. The teacher will provide learners with resources and information required to deliver the task. All assessment criteria applicable to the task must be discussed with the learners prior to the commencement of the task.

3) Case study

A case study will involve a detailed description of a specific situation or phenomenon. The description can either be real or hypothetical and can be taken from a book, newspaper, magazine, video or the radio. Case studies will assess whether a learner can apply knowledge, skills and values to an unfamiliar context. The focus will be determined by the content covered according to the annual teaching plan. The teacher will provide learners with resources and information required to deliver the task. All assessment criteria applicable to the task must be discussed with the learners prior to the commencement of the task.

4) Test

Tests usually consist of a range of questions. Learners are required to respond within a specified time. Questions are useful to assess knowledge recall and test understanding and comprehension. If questions are correctly phrased, they can also test application of knowledge. Since they are generally easy to mark reliably this is a good way to conduct summative assessment, it can also be a very useful formative tool.

4.4.3 Examinations

Examinations of at least 60 minutes each will be administered at the end of year 1 - 3 as part of the internal examination timetable of the school/district/province. The examinations will comprehensively address the knowledge and skills covered according to the annual teaching plan for Life Skills. More than one type of question will be incorporated and the focus will be on the application of knowledge in an integrated manner.

Outline for examinations

The outline below will be followed when setting the Years 1 - 4 Personal and Social Well-being examination and test papers. The Year 1 – 3 examinations and tests will consist of two sections.

Year 4: School Based Assessment for the qualification covers work from Term 1-3

Total for examination: 50 Marks

Section A: 25 marks	Section B: 25 marks
All questions are compulsory. • The questions must be matching columns and fill in/ complete sentences or list. • They will test understanding and factual knowledge.	All questions are compulsory. • Case study may be used. • The questions must be a combination of three or more types of questions, ranging from state, explain, discuss and describe. • They will be short open-ended and knowledge-based questions that include information that learners have acquired from the Personal and Social Well-being class. • Learners must provide direct responses and full sentences in point form. • One question will focus on the application of knowledge and skills and responses will either be full sentences in a point form or a short paragraph. • Learners will solve problems, make decisions and give advice. They will provide few direct responses.
Note. Information provided in the case studies must be current, up-to-date, age-appropriate and learner-friendly.

NB. A marking memorandum or guideline suitable to each of the tasks above must be used to assess learner performance. The nature of the task and the knowledge, skills and values that are to be assessed will provide guidance on the type of the assessment tool. Provision must be made in the marking memorandum or guideline for the learner's own interpretation of the questions.

4.5 Programme of assessment

4.5.1 Assessment across the four years

Please note the time allocation for Life Skills: Six (6) hours per week is allocated for Life Skills in all years.

The programme of assessment is designed to spread formal assessment tasks throughout the school year. In Life Skills learners in year 1-3 are expected to complete a total of four formal assessment tasks per year. The four formal tasks make up 100% of the total mark for the subject for each year. Year 4 learners will complete 3 formal assessment tasks.

4.6 Recording

Recording is a process in which the teacher documents the level of a learner's performance in a specific assessment task. It indicates learner progress towards the achievement of the knowledge and skills as prescribed in the Curriculum and Assessment Policy Statements. Records of learner performance should provide evidence of the learner's conceptual progression within a year and his/her readiness to progress or be promoted to the next year. Records of learner performance should also be used to verify the progress made by teachers and learners in the teaching and learning process.

4.7 Reporting

Reporting is a process of communicating learner performance to learners, parents, schools, and other stakeholders. Learner performance can be reported in a number of ways; these include report cards, parents' meetings, school visitation days, parent-teacher conferences, phone calls, letters, class or school newsletters, etc. Teachers will record actual marks against the task by using a record sheet; and report percentages against the subject on the learners' report cards.
